Rider Hotel Not UCSF's

Chancellor Julius R. Krevans, MD, has announced that UCSF is not involved in a plan proposed by Dr. J. Alfred Rider for a commercial hotel to be constructed behind Dr. Rider's building at 350 Parnassus Avenue.

"This is not a UCSF building," the Chancellor emphasized. "The University has had absolutely no part in the planning project. When the question came up in 1976, the campus took a position opposing the project; there has been no change from that position," he stated.

In a public statement issued in January, 1976, then Chancellor Francis A. Sooy, MD, declared "There is a need for some sort of low cost accommodation for patients and their families who come to UCSF from northern and central California and from all over the western states for complex diagnostic and special treatment afforded by the campus as a tertiary medical and health center. We would hope that at some point in time someone will provide such accommodation in a nearby neighborhood, but would construct it in a commercial, not a residential area, that would be within convenient commuting distance to this campus.

"The need is really for low cost housing for people who must come a long way and stay a long time," he declared.

The Rider hotel issue will be on the November city ballot.

Dental Care in a Bus

Some 1500 children of migrant farmworkers in the Dixon and Woodland (Yolo County) area received dental care this summer through the UCSF School of Dentistry Mobile Clinic. The clinic, which has been in existence for 14 summers, is a remodeled bus containing a complete four-chair dental clinic with portable X-ray and processing units. It provides free dental care to children, many of whom would not receive it otherwise.

Help for Children with Verbal Communication Problems

Children with communication and learning problems are being helped in the UCSF Preschool Language and Early Skills Program.

Organized in 1976, the Preschool Program is part of the Child Study Unit of the Department of Pediatrics and is designed for children from three to six years of age with average abilities who are having major difficulty with communication skills.

Problems can include delayed speech and language development, immature fine and gross motor skills, poor socialization ability, or a general lack of readiness for kindergarten.

The goal of the program is to help children and their families identify and remedy communication problems at an early age. Before enrolling in the program, child and parents are referred to the UCSF Audiology and Speech Clinic for a speech and language evaluation and hearing screening at no charge to any child having communication problems.

Enrollment fees for this program are based on a sliding scale with additional financial assistance available to families having significant need. For further information call 666-1776.

Blood Drive Oct 11

The neighborhood is invited to participate in the final blood drive of the year on Monday, October 11.

Campus blood donation sites are the main lounge of Millberry Union, 500 Parnassus Avenue, from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and the mezzanine level of the School of Nursing building (enter through Clinical Sciences corridor, 521 Parnassus Avenue), 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The blood drive is sponsored by the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank and coordinated by the UCSF Tours and Speakers Bureau. For further information on the drive call 666-4394.

First Patients in Long Hospital

Part of Moffitt Hospital's ninth floor — the general surgery unit — has moved to the seventh floor of the new Joseph M. Long Hospital. This is the first inpatient unit to move into the new hospital.

The eighth floor of the new hospital is scheduled to be occupied by patients sometime in late September and the ninth floor in October.

In addition, the Emergency Room has moved to its new location with twice the space of the previous one, with an increase from 11 to 18 beds. In the next few months this area also will include a satellite X-ray unit to help with patient care.

By the end of the year, the permanent Emergency Room entrance and parking area will be open and located immediately east of the Moffitt/Long hospitals.

The first patient care area — the Walter A. Haas, Jr. Radiation Oncology Pavilion reception area — was opened in April of this year.

Tentative plans are now underway for a formal dedication and open house for the new building when it is fully occupied.

A Move to Laguna Honda School

The campus Personnel Department and the Pediatric Reading and Language Development Clinic will move to Laguna Honda School at Seventh Avenue and Irving Street, effective Monday, September 13.

These offices will occupy the first floor of the building. It also includes a conference room that is available to members of the neighborhood as a community resource, when not being used by the University, including evenings and weekends.

Additional moves will include some academic programs of the School of Medicine on the second and third floors when renovation is completed.

The University leased Laguna Honda School from the S.F. Unified School District last year, when the district declared it and a number of other schools as surplus property. The adjacent public parking lot and the playground are still under the jurisdiction of the city and school district.

See details in the next issue of To Our Neighbors on the special open house planned for the late fall and how to schedule meetings in the community meeting room.

Rentals Needed

UCSF is having difficulty locating housing for its students, faculty and staff. Rentals are needed including private rooms, studios, apartments, flats and houses — permanent rentals and sublets. If you have any rentals available, please contact the UCSF Housing Office at 666-1426, Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Course for Diabetics and Their Families

The Diabetes Teaching Center at UCSF is offering a four-day course year-round to diabetics and their families.

The course instructs the diabetic in the different aspects of proper self-care, including administration of diabetic medications, blood glucose monitoring, urine testing for sugar and acetone, food selection and preparation, and prevention and management of complications.

This School of Nursing program covers all the information a diabetic should know about the disease and how to live with it in as normal a manner as possible.

For registration and fee information contact Peggy Huang, RN, at 665-1010.

Grant for Occupational Health

A multi-disciplinary training program for students and professionals in the field of occupational health will be expanded by a three-year grant of $621,546 from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to the Occupational Health Clinic at SFGH.

Expansion of the program will help ease the severe shortage of health professionals trained to treat work-related health problems, according to Richard H. Fine, MD, medical director of the Adult Health Center at SFGH. He adds that it also will help to meet the growing demand by organized labor for occupational health care services.

UC-Berkeley also is participating in this project.
